MyFC appoints Max Rydahl as Group Sales and Marketing director

Stockholm, August 8 2017

Max Rydahl, most recently from Telia Company, will effective August 14 join the executive leadership team of Swedish fuel cell company MyFC as Group Sales and Marketing Director.

Max Rydahl is currently Head of Business Development and Hardware Services at Telia Sweden, driving Telia's connected cars offering among other things. Prior to that, he was both Purchasing and Product director at Phone House.

"Max understands the consumer market, is an experienced negotiator and has a wide network with global players in the mobile industry. He has a unique combination of experience from business development, driving profitability and purchasing – a clear competitive advantage in an industry that is growing as fast as ours is. I have promised organizational reinforcements for a long time, and I am very pleased to be able to deliver on that promise," says Björn Westerholm, CEO of myFC.

"MyFC is first of all in the forefront of a market that is expanding at breakneck speed. But this assignment is also emotionally appealing at the personal level: I get to work with green energy that enables constant connectivity, whether via a phone or a car. I can't wait to drive sales for myFC in such a decisive stage as the company is right now," says Max Rydahl.

Max Rydahl's responsibilities will cover all myFC's sales and marketing efforts directed toward mobile operators, power bank producers and smartphone manufacturers. Down the line, sales of Lamina REX will be added.

Max Rydahl takes office on August 14. The executive leadership team of myFC will as of that date consist of CEO Björn Westerholm, CFO Ulf Henning, Chief Product Officer Michael Glantz, and Group Sales and Marketing Director Max Rydahl.
