Enviro appoints Mårten Wikforss as responsible for IR and communications

Scandinavian Enviro Systems has contracted Mårten Wikforss as responsible for the company's communications and investor relations.

Wikforss is an independent communications advisor with a focus on cleantech and greentech companies and has, among other things, been the communications and IR manager for the fuel cell company PowerCell Sweden AB. Wikforss has a long-standing past as information manager within AB Volvo, including in the role of Executive Vice President, Corporate Communication.

Mårten Wikforss has been continuously employed by Enviro as an advisor for several years, but the company now chooses to formalize the collaboration by giving him an official role as responsible for the company's communications and investor relations. The change is made against the background of the spring's agreement with the leading European infrastructure structure investor Antin and the resulting increasing need for a closer dialogue with the stock market and other external stakeholders.
