The Recovered Carbon Black Conference is an annual conference that brings together innovators, experts, and industry leaders to discuss the latest development in the recovered carbon black field. On November 7, Enviro's CEO Thomas Sörensson will participate in a panel discussion with business leaders on the topic of ongoing projects.

"This is a great opportunity for the industry to come together and exchange experiences and knowledge, and together take important steps forward in increasing the sustainability of the tire recycling sector. Enviro is one of the leading players in the recycling of end-of-life tires and I hope to contribute with our vision on how tire recycling on a big scale can be implemented," says Thomas Sörensson, CEO Enviro.

The Recovered Carbon Black Conference is an annual event and platform for businesses who research, develop, and sell carbon black. The aim is to share knowledge, identify trends, and get practical examples of innovative solutions, such as Enviro's patented technology for recycling end-of-life tires.

Speakers at the conference include representatives from Bridgestone and Enviro's main shareholder Michelin. The CEO panel with Enviro's Thomas Sörensson is one of the highlights of the three-day event in Barcelona, Spain, November 6-8.
