

Bauhaus: More than the name of a rock band?

You bet! Let's rock'n roll and celebrate 100 years of a German design revolution that changed the world.

100 years of Bauhaus! Celebrate with us.

In America and all over the world, ideas which had once seemed avant-garde, became part of everyday life. For us, this is reason enough to celebrate the Centenary of Bauhaus in 2019! In Germany, and in Bauhaus style of course. Concerts, festivals, major exhibitions in new museums opening in the cities of Weimar and Dessau. Just to name a few of our many event highlights.

Bauhaus: As hip as ever.

Next time you sit in an angular chair made with leather and stainless steel tubing or switch on a table lamp, think Bauhaus. This movement, which began in 1919, promoted the idea that good design could be mass-produced and affordable for all. And the man who came up with that concept was Walter Gropius, a German architect who looked into the future.

Years before he came to Cambridge Mass. in February 1937 to become professor of architecture at Harvard University, Gropius had already begun to revolutionize the idea of design in Germany. From funky coffee pots and glass ashtrays to sleek chairs, from practical door handles to cradles and chess pieces, what was radical then still looks contemporary in the 21st century.

Where you can walk in the great designer's footsteps.

Bauhaus changed the world, so there is plenty of information online. The new launched website www.gobauhaus.com provides you with a top-collection of where to stay and eat, as well as what to do and see. Pick a topic. Discover more! The German states of Saxony-Anhalt and Thuringia, which together are BauhausLand, are waiting for you.

Dig a little deeper. Follow the Bauhaus Trail.

Admire iconic Bauhaus buildings, dine in a Bauhaus-designed restaurant or stay in an authentic Bauhaus-designed B&B, simply enjoy unforgettable moments. Starting in Weimar you will find a city boasting a long history as a cultural hotspot. In the ancient lanes in the city's heart, handsome Renaissance and Baroque buildings stand side by side. While you will rather see dreamy parks and buildings during your days in Weimar, the emerging industrial region around Dessau had already produced many pioneering inventions by this time. And this is only a part of what you can expect in BauhausLand. If you love design and want to experience a new idea which remains pertinent today, this is the perfect vacation destination.
