

Xer Technologies AG Announces Appointment of David Henschel as Chief Commercial Officer

Xer Technologies AG (Xer Tech Holding AB, Spotlight Stock Market: XER) is pleased to announce the appointment of David Henschel as Chief Commercial Officer (CCO).

In his new role, David will lead Xer Technologies' global commercial strategy, business development, and sales execution. He will work closely with Gökmen Cetin, Head of Global Operations, to strengthen the Company's commercial organisation and support its continued international growth.

David Henschel brings extensive experience in senior commercial leadership, with a strong background in complex systems sales, primarily within the defence sector. During his career at Rheinmetall, he held senior sales responsibilities focused on strategic customer engagements and large-scale defence programmes.

Before pursuing his commercial career, David served in the UK Armed Forces, providing him with valuable operational experience and a deep understanding of defence customer requirements. Aged 58, he brings decades of leadership experience and extensive industry knowledge to Xer Technologies.

CEO Statement

"We are delighted to welcome David Henschel as our new Chief Commercial Officer. His proven track record in driving complex defence systems sales and achieving international commercial success makes him an outstanding addition to the Xer Technologies leadership team. As we accelerate our global expansion, David's expertise will play a pivotal role in unlocking new opportunities. He will help drive the execution of our growth strategy and advance our mission to enable customers to generate actionable data and critical intelligence for a safer, more effective and sustainable world," says CEO Erik Herlyn.
